REPORT

OF THE

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

PHILADELPHIA, April 25th, 1901.

The Board of Directors of the Zoological Society of Philadelphia submits to the members and loanholders its twenty-ninth annual report of the affairs of the Society for the year ending February 28th, 1901.

GENERAL AFFAIRS AND FINANCES.

The number of members at the close of the year was :—

Annual members	293
Life members	1,325
Corresponding members	9
Honorary members	21
Perpetual members	260
Junior members	2
Total members	1,910

It has long been felt that there should be a grade of membership especially suited to children. To meet this need the Board has created a class of Junior Members, the conditions of which are stated in the following by-law :—

“Junior Members shall be minors, who shall be elected by the Board and shall make such payment as may be fixed by the Board. Junior membership shall terminate when the holder becomes eighteen years of age; but a Junior Member may become a Life Member on payment of the additional sum required to equal fifty dollars.”

The single payment required of Junior Members has been fixed at five dollars.

An effort has been organized to canvass the city for the purpose of increasing the membership in all classes, and it is earnestly hoped that their numbers may be brought up to a point which will compare more favorably than is now the case, with the classes of contributing members of similar institutions in other cities.

The following is a report in detail of the admissions and receipts for the year :—

Adults (paying at gates)	124,851
Children (paying at gates)	39,277
Members (including Life and Annual Members, loanholders' annual, and complimentary annual tickets)	2,310
Loanholders' single tickets	11,552
Free admissions (charitable institutions, donors' tickets, &c.)*	3,156
Coupon tickets	523
Excursion tickets	10,237

The receipts from admissions have been $1785 less than in the preceding year, but when the fact is recalled that in September 1899, the encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic added several thousand dollars, nearly all of which came from strangers to the city, it is seen that the regular admissions have probably been somewhat greater than in that year.

It is not easy to express the full extent of the loss sustained by the Society, in the death on July 14th of Mr. James Biddle Leonard, a member of the Board since 1893. Though Mr. Leonard's interest in the Gardens began with their opening, the demands of an active life long withheld him from an official connection with them, but from the date of his election as a Director, he brought to bear upon all questions concerning their welfare, a clear judgment and an unfailing energy which resulted in services second to no others rendered by any single individual to the Society.

In 1880 a list was published, giving the proportional number of species of mammals which had bred in the Gardens, to the whole number which had been exhibited up to that time. A comparative statement, including the twenty-one years which have elapsed since then, is of interest:—

1880.				1901.
	NO. OF SPECIES EXHIBITED.	NUMBER BREEDING.	PROPORTION.	NO. OF SPECIES EXHIBITED.	NUMBER BREEDING.	PROPORTION.
Primates . .	46	3	1 in 15.3	89	11	1 in 8
Carnivora . .	44	7	6.1	92	18	5.1
Insectivora	4
Chiroptera . .	3	4
Rodentia . .	41	8	5.2	73	13	5.6
Proboscidea . .	2	2
Ungulata . .	41	13	3.1	81	32	2.5
Sirenia . . .	1	2
Edentata . .	4	8
Marsupialia .	19	4	4.7	33	11	3
Monotremata	1
	201	35	5.7	389	85	4.5

In the remaining classes the proportion of breeding species is much less. Among birds, 19 species have bred out of 657; of reptiles, 24 out of 263; and of batrachians, 2 out of 40.

It would appear that the constant observations which have been made in large zoological gardens should have thrown light on the nature of the physiological causes which underlie the sterility so general among wild animals in captivity, but it must be admitted that the advance in biological knowledge during the last two generations has, as yet, done nothing to solve this important question.

The most noteworthy death of the year was that of the male Indian rhinoceros, purchased March 13th, 1875, which died January 3d, 1901, presenting every evidence of old age, which was probably the case, as he is known to have been at least fully mature when brought to this country, thirty-six years ago. As this species is now far on the road towards extinction, this loss is to be doubly regretted.

Other deaths were: a male polar bear, a brown hyena which had been in the Gardens for thirteen years, a striped hyena, and a male American buffalo, which was procured by exchange in 1896 in order to introduce a new strain of blood into the herd.

Much work has been done in the Gardens, both in repair and in extension.

The enlarging of the Aviary, which was referred to in the last report, has been completed by the erection at its north end, of a rectangular addition measuring thirty-two by twenty-four feet, for the accommodation of the collection of parrots, which formerly occupied one-half of the main building. This room contains eighty-two cages. Its walls are lined with white glazed tile, and being well lighted, the interior effect is most pleasing, and the sanitary conditions appear to be good. The old portion of the building was completely repaired, and the cages occupying the middle wall space on both sides were torn out and replaced by a double tier of smaller ones. Under the new arrangement the whole number of cages in the Aviary has been increased from sixty to one hundred and eighty-eight.

Twenty-six additional cases of improved construction have been placed in the central portion of the Reptile House, and the accommodations in the Small Mammal House were added to in a like manner.

The reduction in size, and increase in number, of the cages here mentioned, has resulted from the long experience of the Society in the effort to adjust the needs of animal life to the economical limitations which are forced upon most zoological collections formed upon a large scale. In many groups, as in parrots among birds, and in reptiles of sluggish habit, it has not been found that cages, relatively extravagant both in space and cost, have added observably to health or longevity; in fact, with parrots, the best results have been reached in cages too small to induce the attempt to fly. On the side of the public, it is believed that both interest and instruction are better served by placing each species in a separate cage, than by mixing together in larger inclosures, a number of different kinds which it is practically impossible for the uninstructed visitor to identify.

Through the interest of a generous patron of the Gardens, means were provided for converting the upper portion of the stream in rear of the deer park, into a pond for otter, which has proved to be one of the most attractive features of the collection. At the lower end of the same stream, adjoining the beaver, another inclosure has been made for wood ducks.

Nearly all of the older buildings and enclosures were repaired and painted, leaving no great amount of such work to be done during the coming year.

The appropriation of $2500 for permanent improvements, made by the City Councils, through the Commissioners of Fairmount Park, was expended in renewing asphalt walks. The great extent of these paths, most of which were laid twenty-five years ago, now creates the necessity of a considerable outlay for repairs, compensation for which may perhaps be found in the fact that, so far as is known, in no other zoological garden is the public provided with walks clean and dry at all seasons.

On a general review, it may be said that at no previous time have the Gardens possessed equal facilities for the display of the collections, and it has rarely happened that the collections themselves have been more extensive or important. This is especially true of small mammals, birds, and reptiles, although the second group was of necessity much scattered during the progress of the work at the Aviary, which occupied nearly the whole summer.

The Society has always given especial attention to the collecting of North American reptiles, and some measure of its success may be found in the statement that much of the time of the Secretary was occupied during the year, in preparing for publication a systematic work on the snakes of the United States, a large part of the basis for which was the collections made by the Society during the past twenty-five years, and it was found that of one hundred and thirty-one species and subspecies recognized in that work, eighty-six have been represented by living specimens in the Gardens. Of the forty-five which we have not yet succeeded in obtaining, the larger proportion are of remote and limited distribution—more than one-half of them being known only from a few alcoholic specimens scattered in various museums. Nineteen species of other authors, not recognized in the work here referred to, have also been shown in this collection.

For the gifts which have been made during the year the Board tenders its grateful acknowledgments.

By order of the Board,

ARTHUR ERWIN BROWN,

Secretary.
